Reflection and Discussion Questions

1. A quote often attributed to Charles Spurgeon says "I have learned to kiss the wave that strikes me against the Rock of Ages". Are you grateful for the way God used that trial to draw you nearer to Himself (even if you aren't grateful for the trial itself)? If so, how long did it take you to feel that gratitude?
2. Do all the promises of God's covenant with Abram sound easy and desirable (Genesis 15)?
3. What is your favorite thing you read about God's character in your God Shots from this week?

The Bible Recap

Job's Righteousness and Suffering

From the opening chapter of Job, we know that God considers Job a righteous man. But Job and his friends' understanding of righteousness is incomplete; they think righteousness equals blessing. Job's friends believe Job's suffering is a result of his sin: sin equals suffering. Although Job knows he is not blameless, he also is conscientious that he has not committed a grievous sin. Job and his friends do not have a paradigm for sometimes righteousness equals suffering. Since this story was recorded, humanity has not changed. We want a neat and tidy formula so we can control the outcomes of our life.

As we continue to walk with Job this week, let us expand our view to include God in Heaven. When our focus is narrowed to our suffering, we lose sight of the abundant provision of God. Job has suffered through the death of all his children and the loss of all his earthly possessions, but he chooses to cling to his relationship with God. Job can say confidently with the Psalmist: The Lord is my shepherd. I shall not want.
